Build a Stronger Organization from the Inside Out!

November 20, 2026
12:00 noon - 1:00pm

Join us for a live listening session to preview an upcoming guided training series that helps organizations embed positive support practices into everyday operations - improving staff confidence, reducing crises, and enhancing quality of life for the people you support.

The Minnesota Department of Human Services, in partnership with the University of Minnesota's Institute on Community Integration, is offering a multi-year opportunity for agencies to strengthen organization-wide systems through person-centered Positive Behavior Support (PBS). Selected organizations will engage in a structured training and technical assistance process designed to build capacity for integrating person-centered practices with other positive supports.

Over the course of three years, participating teams will:

- Receive training, technical assistance, and evaluation support tailored to their organization.
- Develop and implement action plans that build positive, person-centered organizational culture.
- Learn to apply PBS strategies at three levels—Universal, Secondary, and Tertiary—to improve quality of life, prevent problems, and provide individualized supports.
- Collaborate with regional networks to expand statewide capacity for person-centered and positive support practices.

The experience is designed for organizations that choose a long-term commitment, with Year 1 focused on universal strategies and foundational action planning, setting the stage for deeper implementation in Years 2 and 3. Agencies selected will demonstrate leadership commitment, team engagement, and readiness to embed person-centered values across their organization.
